The programme for this day, memorable in the history of North Carolina, was carried out Drecisely; there was not a single deviation. The Presidential train arrived at Millbrook, a little station on the Seaboard Air Line only five miles from here at 1 o'clock in the morning. There the party reposed for seven hours and took breakfast on the car. Promptly at 8 o'clock the special pulled into the Union Station. Attached to the rear of the President's car was a large stalk of cotton, with a dozen bolis, full opened. It was placed there by a Richmond enthusiast, and pleased the President very much.

D-light-ed.

D-light-ed.

The President stepped briskly from his car and clasped the hand of Chief Marshal B. Frank Mebane, who, fortunately for the fair and the success of this great day, is a warm friend of the President, and served as a delegate to the National Republican Convention in order to cast his vote for the nombation of Theodore Roosevelt as President. President Roosevelt recognized him instantly, and when he exclaimed in his warm-hearted way: "I am positively delighted," the persons present all smiled.

The geniaity of the President was contageous. He had a hearty greeting for Lieutenant-Governor Funcis D. Winston, who represented the State in the absence of Governor R. B. Glenn, who well-called to Greensboro by the death of his brother.

brother.

In the receiving party were three men wearing the Confederate gray uniforms. They were General Julian S. Carr, of Durham; Major H. A. London, of Pittsboro, and General W. P. Roberts, of Gate. President Roosevelt had a specially warm greeting for these.

"I were the gray for four years," said Major London, who carried the last order of General Robert E. Lee in the Civil War, when introduced to the President, "but I am proud to say that I have a son who now wears the blue in the International Control of the International Control of Cont son who now wears the buds "
United States navy."
"That is fine." exclaimed the President,
as he again grasped the Major's hand.

Kindred Spirit.

Kindred Spirit.

When Chrence Poe was introduced to President Roosevelt in the Senate chamber, he recalled the Raleigh editor's article on "Lynching—A Southern View," published in the Allantic Monthly last year, about which the President wrote Mr. Poe at the time.

"By George! I want to talk to you," said the President to Mr. Poe, and he called him aside and discussed general Southern problems with enthusiasm. The President said that he was studying Southern questions very closely, and that he was greatly interested in what hroad-gauged, liberal Southerners are saying." I want to follow them rather than force on them views of my own," said the President. He expressed his high appresiation of Bishop Strange, of Wilmington, whom he quoted with approval in his New York speech on the negro last witer.

or the negro question and talk of l equality and intermarriage, Presi-Roosevelt expressed himself pic-quely and vigorously. "I have never

Square Deal.

An amusing incident occurred during the President's address at the fair. He turned and addressed the people on the lifterent sides of the stand. As he faced most, some one on the west called: "Talk to us; we can't hear." The President stopped and laughed. Then another man the west valled: "Give we fellows over nopped and laughed. Then another had on the west yelled: "Give we fellows over here a square deal."

"All right," cried the President. "You hall have a square deal, but I have not a square face to face four sides at e President was accompanied south

a Raleigh by Colonel A. B. Andrews, vice-president of the Southern Rali; Lieutenant-Governor Winston and ed States Senators Simmons and rman. The train left exactly on time, sident Roosevelt stood on the rear as the train moved off partorm as the train moved off and waved his silk hat, to the distinguished party that had excerted him from the lair, and called out: "Good-bye, I thank too all."

President's Speech.

There were nearly forty thousand peo-le on the fair grounds when the party ple on the fair grounds when the party passed up the race track and to the spe-ial stand in front of the grand stand, rected and beautifully decorated espe-ially for the President. The President was introduced by Lieutenant-Governor vas introduced by Lieutenant-Governor Ninston, who said:

"Mr. President, we bid you welcome to North Carolina to-day. We welcome you not only as President of the United Rates, but as a man whose virtues are lear to the people of our State, a man who assures all of us a square deal. If, President, we welcome you."

Mr. Roosevelt began with a pleasant with respect to the occasion, and noted

Mr. Roosevelt began with a pleasant teference to the occasion, and noted that he had been met at the station by an officer in a Confederate uniform, dajor Henry A. London, of Pitrsboro, aho said: "I am glad to meet my President, I fought in the Confederate army for four years, wearing the gray, but now my son is in the United States navy ighting for our flag." (Applause.)

The President, continuing, said: I am glad here at the capital of North harding to have a chance to greet so

Good Cigars

Good cigars are not all Imported cigars are not all good. However, every cigar we keep-whether imported or domestic--is a good, satisfaction-promoting smoke.

There is not a cigar buyer in Richmond who cannot be exactly suited at our Cigar Counter.

L. Wagner Drug Co.

The Totlet and Perfumery Druggist, SIXTH AND BROAD STREETS. Open All Night.

"Berry's for Clothes."

vim and snap. No weakness is permissable in their clothes. Vim and snap in our boys' clothing.

Wears well, too.

Sutts and Overcoats $3.80 up.

Everything good for boys'

The Individual.

The Individual.

The man must be decent in his home life, his private life, of course; but this is not by itself enough. The man who falls to be honest and brave, both in his political franchise and in his private business, contributes to political and sortial anarchy. Self-government is not an easy thing. Only those communities are aft for it in which the average individual practices the virtue of self-command, of self-restraint, of wise disinterestedness combined with wise self-interest; where the individual possess common-sense, honesty and courage.

And now I want to say a word to you on a special subject in which all the

the individual possess common-sense, honesty and courage.

And now I want to say a word to you on a special subject in which all the country is concerned, but in which all the country is concerned, but in which North Carolina has a special concern.

The preservation of the forests is vital to the welfare of every country. China and the Modifleranean countries offer examples of the terrible effect of deforest, and the Modifleranean countries offer examples of the terrible effect of deforest, and the modification of the nations. One of the must obvious duties which our generation owes to the generations. One of the must obvious duties which our generation owes to the generations one of the must obvious duties which our generation works not only for the sent of the come after us is to preserve the existing forests. The prime difference between civilized and uncivilized peoples is that in civilized peoples each generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generation works not only for its own well-being, but for the well-being of the generation well-being of the generation of this land to be destroyed, so that we hand over to our children a heritage diminished in value, we thereby prove our unfitness to stand in the forefront of civilized peoples.

One of the greatest of these heritages is our forest wealth. It is the upper allitudes of the forested mountains that are most valuable to the nation as a whole, especially because of their effects upon the water supply. Neither State nor nation can afford to turn these mountains over to the unrestrained groed of those-who would exploit them at the expense of the future. We cannot afford to wait interests of private partie

Fine Appalachian Forests. West by the National government.

Fine Appalachian Forests.

All the higher Appalachians should be reserved, either by the States or by the nation, I much prefer that they should be put under national control, but it is a mere truism to say that they will not be reserved either by the States or by the Nation, unless you people of the South show a strong interest therein. Such reserves would be a paying investment, not only in protection to many interests, but in dollars and cents to the government. The importance to the Southern people of protecting the Southern people of protecting the Southern mountain forests is obvious. These floods which, in the recent past, have, during a single twelvemonth, destroyed property officially valued at nearly twice what it would cost to buy the Southern Appalachain Reserve. The maintenance of your Southern water powers is not less important, than the prevention of floods, because if they are infured your manufacturing interests will suffer with them. The perpetuation of your forests, which have done so much for the South, should be one of the first objects of your public men.

The two Senators from North Carolina

he one of the area.

The two Senators from North Carolina have taken an honorable part in this movement. But I do not think that the people of North Carolina, or of any other Southern State, have quite grasped the importance of this movement to the commercial development and prosperity of the South.

the importance of this movement to the commercial development and prosperity of the South.

The position of honor in your parade to-day is held by the Confederate veterans. They by their deeds reflect credit upon their descendants and upon all Americans, both because they did their duty in war and because they did their duty in peace. Now if the young men, their sons, will not only prove that they possess the same power of feality to an ideal, but will also show the efficiency in the ranks of industrial life that their fathers, the Confederate veterans, showed that they possessed in the ranks of war the industrial future of this great and typically American Commonwealth is assured.

drawn by animals, by pack trains, and by sailing ships and rowboats. On land this meant that commerce went in slow cumberous, and expensive fashion over highways open to all. Normally these highways could not compete with water transportation, is such was feasible between the connecting points.

All this has been changed by the development of the railroads. Save on the ocean or on lakes so large as to be practically inland seas, transport by water has wholly lost its old position of superiority over transport by land, while instead of the old highways open to everyone on the same terms, but of a very limited usefulners, we have new highways—railroads—which are owned by private corporations, and which are practically of unlimited, instead of limited, usefulness. The old laws and old customs which were adequate and proper to meet the old conditions need radical readjustment in order to met these new conditions. The cardinal features in these changed conditions are first, the fact that the new highways, the railway, is, from the commercial standpoint, of infinitely greater importance in our industrial life than was the old high-changed conditions are first, the International that the new highways, the railway, is, from the commercial standpoint, of infinitely greater importance in our industrial life than was the old highway, the wagon road; and, second, that this new highway, the railway, is in the hands of private owners, whereas the old highway, the wagon road, was in the hands of the State.

The management of the new highway, the railroad just of the intricate web of railroad lines which cover the country, is a task infinitely more difficult, more delicate, and more important than the primitively easy task of acquiring or keeping in order the old highway; so that there is properly no andiogy whatever between the two cases.

I do not believe in government ownership of anything which can with propriety, be left in private hands and in particular I should most stremuously object to government ownership of railroads. But I believe with equal firmness that it is out of the question for the government not to exercise a supervisory and regulatory right over the railroads; for it is vital to the well-being of the public that they should be managed in a spirit of fairness and justice toward all the public.

Must Control Railroads.

Must Control Railroads,

controlled. Such a system, for rather such a lack of system, is fertile in abuses of every kind, and puts a premium upon unscrupulous and ruthless cunning in railroad management; for there are some big shippors and some railroad managers who are always willing to take unfair advantage of their weaker competitors, and they thereby force other big shippers and big railroad men who would like to do decently into similar acts of wrong and injustice, under penalty of being left behind in the race for success.

Government supervision is needed quite as much in the interest of the big shipper and of the railroad man who want to do right as in the interest of the big shipper and of the railroad man who want to do right as in the interest of the bind lipper and the consumer.

Experience has shown that the present laws are defective and need amendment. The effort to prohibit all restraint of competion, whether reasonable or unseasonable, is unwise.

What we need is to have some administrative body with ample power to forbid combination that is hurtful to the public, and to prevent favoritism to one individual at the expense of another. In other words, we want an administrative body with the power to secure fair and just treatment as among all shippers who use the railroads and all shippers have a right to use them. We must not leave the enforcement of such a law merely to the present.

The President and his party left Ra-leigh at 1:30 P. M.

THRONG GREETS HIW AT GREENSBORO

(Continued from Pirst Page.)

duced the President in the following "Felow North Carolinians, your President." Cheers again greeted the nation's Chief Executive. As soon as he could make himself heard, he spoke as folfathers, the Confederate veterans, showed that they possessed in the tranks of war the industrial future of this great and typically American Commonwealth is assured.

The extraordinary development of industrialism during the last half century has been due to several causes, but above all to the revolution in the melhods of transportation and communication; that is, to steam and to electricity to the railroad and the telegraph.

Improved Transportation.

When this government was founded commerce was carried on by essentially the same instruments that had been in use not only among civilized, but among barbarous, nations, ever since history dawned; that is by wheeled vehicles

THIS WEEK Best American

Granulated Sugar, 5C ter, per pound ...... 25c Parrot and Monkey and Good Luck Baking Powder, Fresh French Candy, lb., 5c Jefferson Brand Roasted Coffee, in one-pound packages, Grape Nuts or Postum..120

Good Salt Pork, lb. ... 6 1/2 c Sour Pickles, gallon .. 20c Silver King and all popular brands of flour, 32c bzg; per barrel ...... 35.00

New Prepared Buckwheat, 1

1b. package, 5c; 2 lbs., 9c; 3

S. Ullman's Sons Main Street Stores, 1820-1822 East Main Street; Marshall Street Store, 506 East Mar-shall Street. 'Phones at our commemorating by its name one of Washington's great generals. North Carolina's history has ever been high and honorable; and surely, my friends, it is right that we should remember that we mighty deeds of our forefathers are not to serve us as excuses for inaction on our part, but as spurs to drive us forward to doing our duty in our turn. We respect the son of a worthy father if well, makes it incumbent upon him to strive to do better. We despise the boy

Education.

I am glad to note the care that you, in this State are giving to education. The greatness of the country in the time immediately to come will depend upon the way in which the young generation of today is trained to citizenship in the future. I am sorry to say that there is probably the property of the property of the country in the future. I am sorry to say that there is probably the property of the property of the country in the future. It is the probably the property of the country in the future of the probably the property of the propert I am sorry to say that there is probably no one here who is not acquainted with some kindly, well meaning and most foolish father or mother, who, because life has been hard with him or her in the past takes the view that the children are not to have to face any difficulties.

The worst thing that you can do for a wish to hand on to their clinter. Is not any part that was easy, but the part when they did the hardest work and the work that was worth doing, when they proved their feality to an ideal by the way in which they did the work allotted them to do."

Immense Crowd.

The crowd that assembled to greet the President was immense. Even the roofs of box-cars down the railroad yards were covered with people. When the President concluded, some strong man in the crowd yelled bouldy:
"Three cheers for our President!" and they were given with a hearty will and vim. The President smiled, waved his adleu, and the train pulled out of the station on its way southward.

MRS, JACKSON GREETS HIM AT CHARLOTTE

cised as matter of course by the national banks examiners as regards national banks. My object in giving these additional powers to the administrative body representing the government—the Interstate Commerce Commission, or whatever it may be—is primarily to secure a real and not a sham control to the government representatives. The American people abhor a sham and with this abnorment representatives. The American people abhor a sham, and with this abnorment cordinal sympathie. Nothing is more injurious from every standpoint than a law which is X-derely sound and fury merely pretense, and not capable of working out tangible results. I hope to see all the power that I think it ought to have granted to the government; but I would far rather see only some of it granted, but really granted, than see a protone of granting all, in some shape that really amounts to nothing.

It must be understood, as a matter of course, that if this power is granted it is to be exercised with—wisdom and caution and self-restraint. The Interstate Commerce Commissioner or other sovernment official who falled to protoct a railroad that was in the right against any clamor, no matter how volent, on the part of the public, would be guilty of as gross a wrong as if he corruptly rendered an improper service to the railroad at the expense of the public. When I say a square deal I mean a square deal; exactly as much a square dost for the rich man as for the poor man; but no more. Let each stand on his merits, receive what is due him, and be judged according to his deserts. To more he is not entitled, and less he shall not have.

At the conclusion of his address the President was given luncheon at the fair grounds, about one hundred guests being present.

The President and his party left Rale and the proper service to the railroad at the fair grounds, about one hundred guests being present.

The President and his party left Rale and the proper service to the railroad at the fair grounds, about one hundred guests being present. CHARLOTTE, N. C., October 19 .- The Jackson. Mrs. Jackson lives in a stone's throw of the station, and she was there when the train pulled in as the head of a committee of ladies appointed by Mayor McNinch to receive Mrs. Roseeveit, When he was introduced he took her hand and remained talking for fully five minutes. "Mrs. Jackson. you do not know how glad I am to meet you. What, the widow of the great Stonewall Jackson. Why, it is worth the whole trip down here to have a chance to shake your hand."

He referred to her grandson, Jackson Christian, whom he appointed to a cafetship at West Point. "He is a mighty fine fellow, Mrs. Jackson, a mighty fine fellow, Mrs. Jackson, a mighty fine fellow, Mrs. Jackson, a mighty fine fellow."

The Citizens Committee stood in wait-Ing while he escorted Mes, Jackson to Mrs, Roosevelt and introduced her, ... While the President was speaking in the park, Mrs. Jackson entertained Mrs. Rossevolt at her home and a hundred Charlotte ladies helped to make her stay pleasant, After Mrs. Roosevelt had re-turned to the car she sent a handsome houquet of American Beauty roses and a note to Mrs. Jackson. Identenant-Governor Wington, acting for Governor Glenn, who is attending

"CLOVER HILL"
Butter makes friends everywhere. The Kind You Have Always Bought ature Chart Hillstone Bears the

Dr. Wm. Russell Jones has removed his office to No. 9 West Grace Street. Bears the Sine Kind You liare Always Bought Bignature Chart Hollithurs his brother's funeral, Senator Simmons and prominent North Carolinians invited to reman on the President's train white in the State, stopped here, since it is but fifteen miles to the border.

President's Speech.
Following is the President's speech:
"Mr. Mayor, Mr. President, Men and Women, of North Carolina, My Fellow-Citizens:

Citizens:

"I have enjoyed more than I can say passing through this great State to-day. I entered your borders a pretty good American and I leave them a better American, and I have reploted in the symptoms of your abounding material prosperity. I am here in a great center of cotton manufactures. With a radius of a hundred miles of this city, perhaps half of the cotton manufacturing in the Italied States is done.

a hundred miles of this city, perhaps half of the cotton manufacturing in the United States is done.

"I realize to the full, as does every good citizen, that there must be a foundation of maierial prosperity upon which to build the welfare of State or nation; but I realize also, as does every good citizen, that material prosperity—material well-being—can never be anything but the foundation. It is the indisponsable foundation, but if we do not raise you on it the superstructure of a higher citizenship, then we fall in bringing this to the level to which it shall and will be brought. (Applause.) And so, then, I congratulate you upon what you have done in the way of malerial growth. I congratulate you even more upon the great historic memories of your State. It is not so very far from here that the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence was made. (Applause.) The declaration that pointed out the path on which the thirteen united colonies trod a few months later.

"As I got off the train here I was greeted by one citizen of North Carolina (and I know that neither the Governor, the Mayor nor the senators will blame me for what I am going to say), whose greeting pleased and touched me more than the greeted by the widow of Stonewall.

I was greeted by the whow of stoleward Jackson (applause), and we of this united country have a right to challenge as a part of the heritage of honor and glory of each American the reunion of one people—Americans who fought in the Civil of mine who fell in the Spanish War at Santlago—to Shipp, of North Carolina (applause). The morning of the fight, he and I took brenkfast together. It was not much of a breakfast, but it was the only breakfast that was going, and we were glad to get it. The night before I had no supper, and he and his comrades gave me out of the very small amount that they had a sandwich. In the morning they had no material for breakfast, but by that time my things had come up, and I shared my breakfast with them. That was at dawn. Before noon one of them was killed, and the other (as was then thought) fatally wounded.

"And now there are here men who

Look to the Future.

"And now, gentlemen, though we glory in the memories of the past, we must escort, the men of the national guard, the artillerymen, the infantrymen. If there comes a war, I know I can count on you and those like you, because the memory of what your fathers did will make you ashamed not to rise level to the demands of the new time, as they rose level to the demands of their time. (Applause.)

"So in civil life. Each generation has its problem. The tremendous industrial development of the past half century—the development which has produced cities such as this—has brought great problems with it—problems connected with aborporations, problems connected with labor,

Good Citizenship.

Good Citizenship,

"And sow, my fellow citizens, remember there is no patent device by which you can achieve good elizenship. There is no patent device by which you can achieve good government. The good citizen is the man who is a good father and a good husband, the man who behaves himself (applause), the man who you are giad to have as a heighbor. He is the good citizen, and the man the public confides in and who does well in the State is the man who applies in dealing with his fellows in the mass just those same qualities that make good citizenship in the individual.

"And now I have got to say good-bye, I cannot tell yon how I have enjoyed my trip through this State, marred though it has been by the lamentable death that rendered the Governor unable to be with me, and for which I feel profound regret and sympathy with the Governor.

"And now, in saying good-bye, I want to say to you men and women that I have been immensely impressed with North Carolina; with her agriculture, with her industries, but that the crop that I like best is the erop of children (applause); and I congratulate North Carolina. I congratulate North Carolina in the I can in the I can

SPEAKS TO STUDENTS OF TRINITY COLLEGE

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
DURHAM, N. C., October 19.—President Roosevelt stopped in Durham this afternoon for fifteen minutes and made a short speech to the Purham people, and the students of Trinity College.

As his train entered into the city limits

...Piano Excellence...

With these fall days—and school days—comes more than ever plano days. The children need a good Piano. The home will be brighter and happier for all if there is plenty of good

But you want Plano excellence—excellence of build, tone and beauty. We sell just such a line. For a quarter of a century we have supplied the most critical. We can supply your wants. The prices are very appealing.

Steinway, Weber, Hardman, Kimball, Standard, Wheelock, Haines, Royal. A line that comprises the age's choicest Planos.

Pianolas and Pianola Pianos

are combinations of simplicity and power. Simple, because a child can play them; powerful, because they play the master-pieces of the world. These attachments are inside and invisible. Your eyes cannot tell they are there.

The Victor Talking Machine

is an entertainer. There is hardly a limit to the number and variety of selections it will give. Clear, natural—just as if you were listoning to the people themselves.

Walter D. Moses & Co., 103 East Broad St.

OLDEST MUSIC HOUSE IN VIRGINIA.

he was heraided by the blowing of all the whistlos and sounding of all the bells in the city, the platform on which he stood was built in front of Trinity-College, and was elaborately decorated with United States colors, as soon as the President stepped on the platform he was presented by a speech from Mayor Graham in a few words of welcome to Durham. In the course of his remarks to the students of Trinity College, the President sold:

students of Trinity College, the President said:

"There must be no coercion of opinion if collegiate training is to bring forth full fruit. You men of this college, you men throughout the South who have had collegiate training, you men' throughout the Union who have had collegiate training, you men' throughout the Union who have had collegiate training, bear a peculiar burden of responsibility. I want you to have a good time and I believe you do. I believe in play withall my heart. Play when you play, but work while you work, and remember, that your having gone through college does not so much confer a special privilege az it imposes a special obligation on you. We have a right to expect a special quality of leadership from the men to whom; much has been given in the way of a collegiate education.

You are not entitled to and special privilege, but you are entitled to be held to a peculiar accountability; you have earned the right to be held peculiarly responsible for what you do. Each one of you, if he is worth his salt, wishes, when he graduates, to pay some portion of the debts due to his alma mater. You have received from her during your years of attendance in her halls certain privi-

it an honor to the college to have sent you forth into the great world. That is the only way in which you can repay to the college what the college has done for you. I earnestly hope and believe that you and those like you in all the colleges of this layd will make it evident to the generation that is rising that you are fit to take leadership, that the training has not been wasted, that you are ready to render to the State the kind of service which is invaluable, because it cannot be bought, because the cannot be pout upon it.

cause it cannot be bought, because there is no price that can be put upon it. We have the right to expect from college men not merely disinterested service, but intelligent service. The few people who exercise self-government always have to war not merely against the knowish man who deliberately does what he knows to be wrong, but against the foolish man who may mean very well, but who in actual fact turns out the ally of the other man who does not mean well; and we must depend upon you men

ROYALLY WELCOMED BY SALISBURY PEOPLE

State of North Carolina, her industries and manufactures and crops, and the best crop of all is her children. I have several little ones myself, said the President.
Continuing, Mr. Roosevelt referred to Continuing, Mr. Roosevelt referred to Salisbury as the place where Andrew Jackson studied law, and this vicinity as being the home of Daniel Boone.

Business was suspended in Salisbury, and the schools of this section attended the Presidential reception in a body.
As the special train pulled into the Salisbury yards the President and party was saluted by twenty-one guns amidst a din of music and hurrahs of enthusiastic citizens.

A SHORT STOP.

Roosevelt Makes a Short Talk at Lexington.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) LEXINGTON, N. C., October 19.—Greeted by the blowing of all the factory and mill whistles and the cheers of five thousand people, the President's train reached here on time at five-five this afternoon. The President made a short speech from the rear platform.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

MOUNT ZION, N. C., October 19.—President Rocsevell's special train passed through here at 10.29 o'clock this evening, exactly on schedule time.

Although some steps incident to the handling of the train will occur, there are no scheduled stops until Roswell, Ga., is reached, at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning. President's Train on Time.

Take TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE HROMO Quilline Tableta.
Druggiels refund money It it rails to cure. B. W.
GROVE'S signature is on each box. 200.—Adv.

our credit system enables many persons to own Diamonds, Watches and all kinds of Jewelry who would not be able to pur-chase such fine goods if they were com-pelled to pay cash? Our customers con-tinue to trade with us. Why shouldn't you open an account with us and pay with your spending money?

J.S. JAMES,

Jeweler and Optician,

The Mark ..and .. The Motto

Tee-Dee Want Ads.

THE PAPER IS The Times-Dispatch

uation hunting doubly sure of suc

Phone 549 for the Tee-Dee Want Ad. Man

The Republic Fire Insurance Co. of Norfolk, Va.,

requires a thoroughly competent man, with practical experience in the fire insurance business, as Accountant and Office Manager. Salary, $80 to $100. Address THE COMPANY.

FLOOR PAINTS, BEST READY-MIXED PAINTS, Waxene, Floor Wax, Brushes, &c

TANNER PAINT & OIL CO.

THOS. A. REDDIN, FUNERAL DIRECTOR, Phone 662. 1434 E. Main St.

Speaks at Spartanburg.

SPEARS AT Spartanburg,
(BY Associated Press.)

SPARTANBURG, S. C. October 19.—
President Rosseveit's train stopped here about five minutes to-night to change engines. A large crowd had gathered at the station and the President came on the rear platform of his car at addressed them.

Explosive Diamonds.

Explosive Diamonds.

It is not uncommon for a diamond to explode soon after it reaches the surface; some have been known to burst in the pockets of the miners or when held in the warm hand, and the loss is the greater because large stone are more liable to explode or fly in pieces than small ones. Valuable stones have been destroyed in this way, and it is white the counting decites are not in the property of the warm pockets large crystals fresh from the warm pockets large crystals fresh from the mine. By way of safeguard against explosion some dealers inbed large diamonds in raw potate to insure-safe transit to England.—London Chronicle.

His Keen Insight.

Hawkshaw, the detective, told how he got his start.
"I sucsed what a present a girl made for me with her own hands was meant for!" he declared.

Appalled by the man's genius, they made haste to do him reverance.—From the Philadelphia Telegraph.